

MR HULL NOT POPULAR IN MANILA

Iowa Congressman Said to Have Been Too Free in Proclaiming Greatness

[By Associated Press.]

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 21.—Congressman Hull's criticisms of the army and officials in Manila are construed in some quarters as partially explained by the Manila Times of July 12 in its report of an incident during which the Iowa statesman lost his temper.

It was last July 4 when Mr. Hull, chairman of the military affairs committee, had his pride offended, and, according to the paper just received, he walked throughout the holiday. No report of this unfortunate affair was allowed to filter through the regular news channels to the outside world, so this is the first news of the "Hull incident" in its entirety. The Manila Times reports it as follows:

"Since the inaugural exercises on July 4 there has been considerable comment and a great amount of surprise expressed in army, navy and civil circles at the eccentric behavior and strange remarks of Congressman Hull on that occasion. It all arose over Mr. Hull's wounded sensibilities because he did not think he was accorded the distinction he considered he was entitled to. The congressman lost his temper and expressed himself in a most unbecoming manner, laying stress on his power as chairman of the house committee on military affairs and reflecting on the highest and best people in the community.

"Mr. Hull had been invited to a seat in the official section of the grand stand, which had been reserved for the official party, military and civil government heads, naval and military commanding officers, the consular corps and other distinguished and representative personages. Needless to say, the seating capacity was limited and each individual received one ticket. No ladies, not even the governor's wife were in the official section and all other prominent people sat in the other parts of the grand stand.

"It appears that the congressman tried to take his family into the tribuna official, but was courteously told that the official arrangement did not permit it. He expostulated, proclaimed his rank, and declared that he would not sit there unless his family could. The usher politely explained that the other section was reserved for this purpose and assured him that it applied to all.

"Mr. Hull then went over and another gentleman who had volunteered to usher placed chairs for his party close to the tribuna official, where the ladies of the commission and military officers and prominent business men sat. Here, after sitting a brief time, the congressman combined in loud tones to a naval officer who was also ushering that he was not being treated properly.

"They put me down here among a lot of clerks, as if I were nobody," said he rudely.

"The officer explained quite courteously that this was not the case, and that he was accorded just as much consideration as others.

"But do you know who I am?" said Mr. Hull. "I am Congressman Hull and chairman of the committee on military affairs.

What the Policeman Said.
"The naval officer again explained that nobody had been given preference before him, but not satisfied (evidently thinking the officer was of the army), he said, loud enough for all to hear:

"I have made lots of officers and can unmake them. I find the army very different here to what I thought it was. This is only in line with the way I've been treated ever since I came to the Philippines."

"Shortly after (this was before the ceremony had commenced), Mr. Hull left the stand and went down in front with the crowd. Here he got beyond the line which was kept for passage and a policeman asked him to step back.

"You don't know who I am: I am Congressman Hull," said he. But the policeman said: "You're no different from anyone else so far as my orders go."

"Mr. Hull remained there during the governor's address. Twice he was asked to come up into the tribuna official and refused—once when he was observed by Commissioner Wright, who sent an army officer to invite him to come up, and another time General Barry, unknown to the incident, went down personally to ask him up.

Angry With Mr. Hull.

"Mr. Hull's remarks have been indignantly discussed as they seriously reflect upon many estimable people. Everybody deprecates the matter, especially his statement that this was in line with the way he had been treated ever since he came here. Mr. Hull has been entertained by many prominent people. A banquet was given to him at the Army and Navy club soon after he arrived and he has been dined by members of the commission and others. Mr. Hull has received every recognition that could have been given him, although he came to the Philippines for private ends, to look into some investments, and not upon any official mission."

"The extraordinary conduct of Congressman Hull has won him much criticism and a sudden notoriety of a new sort. His conduct can hardly be called gentlemanly, and if he attacks the salary scale of the higher insular offices, as he has promised to do, the act will not be lacking a savor of petty vindictiveness.

"It is strange to regard a man of so much reputed ability by which it is to be presumed he has arisen to his place in the state, posing in such a ridiculous and childish light. The nature of his conduct calls for lament thoughts and causes the friction of his rudeness."

POLITICAL PIPE DREAM.

Kansas City Star Correspondent
Gains.

The following is special to the Kansas City Star relative to the political complexion of the Kiowa country:

The Democracy of Oklahoma, bent upon securing political control in the new country, has not awakened, apparently, to the fact that the Republicans have the odds on their side in a way that is causing surprise even among persons who keep close watch upon politics in the territory. The advantages in favor of the Republicans are due to the failure of the Oklahoma legislature to make provision, by apportionment, for the new country. The last apportionment was made in 1895, the council and representative districts having been agreed upon by William C. Renfrow, then Democratic governor, and William Grimes for the Republicans. Every legislature since that time has attempted to reapportion the territory, but bickerings arose, not only between parties, but among representatives of the same political party, that resulted in failure. Apportionment bills were introduced by both parties in the legislature last winter, but ended in talk.

When the apportionment was made in 1895 it was expected that the Wichita and Caddo country would soon be opened to settlement and provision was made for its subsequent representation by adding all that part lying west of the range line between ranges 10 and 11 west to the Twenty-ninth representative district which now includes the counties of Greer, Roger Mills, Day, Washita and part of Dewey. This district is Democratic, but too large and too heavily populated to give fair representation to its citizens. Caddo county, in all probability will be Republican, the addition of the larger part of it to the twenty-fifth district will give the Republican party opportunity to reduce the Democratic majority. The twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth representative districts compose the Thirteenth council district, the eastern portion of the Wichita and Caddo country is attached to the fourteenth representative district.

enning of the Kiowa and Comanche ening of the Kiowa and Comanche country was not thought of when the apportionment was made in 1895 and no provision was made for its representation in the legislature. In the absence of law, it seems as if no relief can be given other than through the legislature and the next legislature does not sit until 1903. The election of this legislature must be based upon the present apportionment, which offers no consolation to the Democrats. With a supposed Democratic majority in the counties of Comanche and Kiowa, and a population that would increase Democratic strength in Oklahoma upon an equitable apportionment, the Republicans are not displeased with a condition that prohibits citizens of these counties from voting for members of the legislature.

UP TO NOW.

Indians At Fort Sill Give Evidences of Culture.

On a recent trip to Fort Sill and Lawton, J. H. Gill, a piano dealer, of this city, stopped at the home of Quanah Parker, head chief of the Comanche Indians, and took his order for a fine piano. Last week Mr. Gill went down to deliver the instrument and took his wife with him on the trip. This is indeed an age of rapid changes. Who of the frontiersmen of a few years ago ever lived to hear of the chief of the Comanches buying a piano for his daughter? A few years ago Emmet Cox, a white man and son-in-law of Quanah Parker, brought home a baby buggy for his first born but instead of riding the baby in it Mrs. Cox's squaw friends had great sport coasting down a hill with it until it was broken to pieces. The piano that Mr. Gill sold to Quanah Parker was a Singer, price $500. It was a present by Parker to his daughter, Juana, a bright and accomplished maiden of 17 summers—Magnum Monitor.

Summer Terrors

Acne, Tetters
Eczema
Salt Rheum
Psoriasis
Nettle Rash

The torrid heat of Summer is almost unbearable under the most favorable conditions, even when the blood is healthy and the skin doing its allotted work properly, and the sweat glands open and pouring out an adequate supply of perspiration to keep the body at an even temperature, but, unfortunately, there are many who must endure not only the suffocating, debilitating heat, but in addition the unspeakable tortures of some burning and itching skin disease. The acid poison in the blood that causes Eczema, Tetters and other diseases of this type seem warmed into life and renewed activity by the Summer's heat. The action of these acids upon the blood soon destroys all of its life-preserving qualities, and it becomes hardly more than water. The skin, instead of receiving a supply of pure and cooling blood, is blistered and burned by the fiery fluids that are carried to the surface, and the pores are soon so swollen and inflamed that perspiration is checked, and the whole body feels like an overheated furnace. Night and day, almost without intermission, the burning and itching continues. No sleep or rest for the tired body. At last the nerves grow weak and the constitution breaks down under the terrible strain. The almost distracted sufferer finds some solace in scratching, and temporary relief from bathing and the application of soothing

The doctors said I had Pustular Eczema, which was confined mostly to my face and hands. Crusts would form and scale off, leaving the places inflamed and raw. I was tormented for five years and used many different applications without relief. A short time after beginning S. S. S. I noticed a great improvement, and a few bottles cured me entirely. My skin is now as clear and smooth as anybody's.

lotions and salves, but the liquid fire that seems to be burning within and without, and slowly consuming the body, is not quenched by these temporary remedies; the lost properties must be restored to the blood, and only persistent and faithful

In July, 1900, I began taking S. S. S. for a case of Eczema of 17 years standing, which had almost covered my body. I took in all seven bottles, and now there is not a spot on me. I quit the medicine in November, since which time I have never seen the slightest evidence of a return of the disease. I cannot too highly recommend your medicine for Eczema.

constitutional treatment can do this. A trial of S. S. S. will soon convince you of its wonderful curative qualities and its virtue as a remedy for all skin affections, no matter in what form the disease appears, whether as sores, pimples, watery blisters or the dry and scaly kind. At this season, when the blood and skin are endeavoring to throw off the poison, is a much more favorable time to begin treatment and help nature to do the work. S. S. S., being a purely vegetable remedy, is best suited for this purpose; it neutralizes the acids, purifies and cools the blood, and leaves no vestige of the poison to re-ferment and bring on a fresh outbreak of the disease. There is no Arsenic, Potash or other harmful ingredient in S. S. S. It is a safe and pleasant purifier and tonic that completely and permanently eradicates all impurities from the system, and makes a lasting cure of blood and skin troubles. Skin diseases are not incurable, as some doctors would have you believe.
